

Building Science Basics and a Look at Future Energy Code Changes, Challenges, and Considerations

About Mark:

Mark LaLiberte has been a national leader in the building industry for more than 25 years. He was a founding partner in Shelter Supply and Building Knowledge Inc. He has worked with the Cold Climate Housing Research Center in Fairbanks, Alaska, developed curriculum for the EEBA "Houses that Work" seminar series, and has a long history of consulting with major manufacturers for product innovation, marketing intelligence, and corporate training.

Travels from: Arizona

As a distinguished trainer, author and consultant, Mark LaLiberte of LaLiberteOnline.com and Building Knowledge Inc. has devoted over two decades to educating the homebuilding industry about the benefits of constructing durable, energy efficient, healthier, more environmentally sustainable homes. It's his commitment to helping the building industry that keeps Mark traveling nationwide, reaching more than 8,000 builders annually.

A presenter in high demand, Mark has been featured at leading industry events such as the NAHB International Builders Show, PCBC, West Coast Green, Sunbelt Builders Show, Energy Star Summit, GreenBuild and JLCLive conferences.

His customers include architects, builders, product manufacturers, utility companies, government agencies, HBA's and Trade Associations. He co-created the program curriculum for the Energy and Environmental Building Association (EEBA) Houses That Work™ program which is based on the U.S. Department of Energy's Building America Program.

Please join us for a unique learning opportunity with noted building science consultant Mark LaLiberte.

Mark will discuss the house as a system and how product selections effect the overall performance of your home. He will also explain wall system and other considerations resulting from implementation of the 2009 International Energy Conservation Code.
